Since the accident, Jack Logan always feels dirty.

He knows it's the guilt; the former money manager worked late one time too often, and it cost him his wife and unborn daughter. Now his life is a maddening series of obsessions and rituals that alienate his friends and plague his mind.

Jack spirals out of control until a postcard arrives in the mail with a photo of a hauntingly familiar missing girl.

Jack pours his grief and dwindling sanity into finding the runaway who looks so much like his wife. Why would she run away? Why doesn't her father seem to care? And why does his sister-in-law seem to care so much? Jack's search for a girl he's never met takes him down dangerous streets and to shady corners of his wife's past, where he uncovers a truth that shakes his deepest perception of reality. Or does it?
