The Divine Journey: A Theoretical and Practical Approach to Ministry Jason A Stevens

A compilation of work done by Jason Stevens while attending Wesley Seminary. It represents some of his best MDiv work. The book is divided into four sections. Each section contains four selected works. The first section investigates a relevant pastoral issue and examines it from the standpoint of biblical theology, theological sources and church historical precedents. The second section offers practical ministry strategies for the Waynesville Church of the Nazarene. The third section provides a look at some of Jason's elective and on-site intensive course work. The final section details the author's spiritual formation journey throughout seminary. The book is an academic work - a portfolio of 16 papers and their appendices. The papers are presented in this book as submitted for grading - for better or worse (typos surely abound). It is the hope of the author that the publishing of these works would be of some help to others who are working through their own beliefs, theories and practices of ministry.
