Philosophical Catechism of the Natural Laws of Man (Classic Reprint) J. G. Spurzheim

Men have long been treated as children; they have been taught that ignorance and credulity are virtues, and that fear is wisdom, and that they may glorify God by flattery rather than by moral excellency. Arbitrary regulations of all sorts have been imposed upon them, and blind and unconditional obedience to these required. Words too often satisfy them, and the less they understand, the more do they generally deem it incumbent on them to admire; sensual gratifications have proved sufficient inducements for them willingly to follow the good pleasure of their masters. Even religion, in one or another form, has been an engine to crush the human mind. This was, at all times more or less the deplorable condition of mankind. Those who even in our days make exception, are comparatively few in number.
